The Last Battle

Soldier Settlement in Australia 1916–1939

Bruce Scates

Monash University

Melanie Oppenheimer

Flinders University of South Australia

When Australian soldiers returned from the First World War they were offered the chance to settle on 'land fit for heroes'. Promotional material painted a picture of prosperous farms and contented families, appealing to returned servicepeople and their families hoping for a fresh start. Yet just 20 years after the inception of these soldier settlement schemes, fewer than half of the settlers remained on their properties. In this timely book, based on recently uncovered archives, Bruce Scates and Melanie Oppenheimer map out a deeply personal history of the soldiers' struggle to transition from Anzac to farmer and provider. At its foundation lie thousands of individual life stories shaped by imperfect repatriation policies. The Last Battle examines the environmental challenges, the difficulties presented by the physical and psychological damage many soldiers had sustained during the war, and the vital roles of women and children.

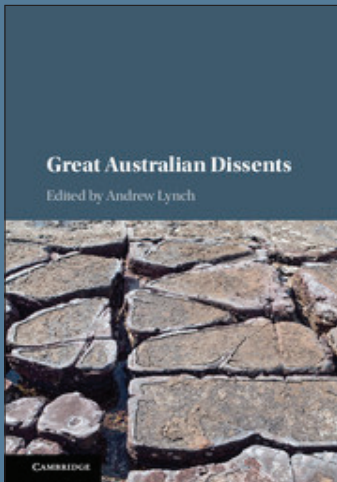

Professor Bruce Scates is Chair of History and Australian Studies and Director at the National Centre for Australian Studies at Monash University, Victoria.

Professor Melanie Oppenheimer is Chair of History and Chair, School Research Committee, in the School of History and International Relations at Flinders University of South Australia.

KEY FEATURES

- Draws on recently uncovered archives to explore soldier repatriation after World War I
- Richly illustrated with archival photos and sketches, bringing history to life
- Explores the personal stories of the soldiers and the families they came home to, highlighting the widespread effect of imperfect repatriation policies

Great Australian Dissents

Andrew Lynch

University of New South Wales

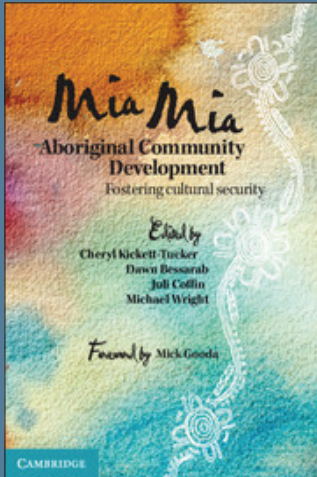

When judges disagree, those in the minority write a dissenting opinion. This book considers the great dissents in Australian law. Their worth may derive from numerous factors, including their rhetorical force as a piece of legal reasoning or emotive power as a judicial lament for the 'error' into which the majority has fallen; the general importance of the issue at stake; as a challenge to the orthodoxy; and, sometimes, the subsequent recognition of a dissenting opinion's correctness and its ultimate vindication. On some occasions, all these features may be strongly present, on others only some. Through a diverse selection of memorable dissenting opinions, this book illuminates the topic of judicial disagreement more generally - not only through examples of instances when minority opinions have been distinctly valuable, but by drawing out a richer understanding of the attributes and circumstances which lead some dissents to become iconic, while so many lie forgotten.

Professor Andrew Lynch teaches and researches in the field of Australian constitutional law at the Faculty of Law, University of New South Wales. His co-authored and co-edited publications include Blackshield and Williams' Australian Constitutional Law and Theory (2014), Inside Australia's Terrorism Laws and Trials (2014), Tomorrow's Federation - Reforming Australian Government (2012) and Counter-Terrorism and Beyond: The Culture of Law and Justice After 9/11 (2010).

KEY FEATURES

- The first book on dissenting opinions in Australian courts
- Features a stimulating variety of dissenting opinions in different areas of law and their diverse claims to 'greatness'
- Commences with a full introductory chapter that contextualises the focus on individual opinions in the broader literature on judicial dissent

Mia Mia Aboriginal Community Development

Fostering Cultural Security

Cheryl Kickett-Tucker
Curtin University of Technology

Juli Coffin
Notre Dame University

Dawn Bessarab
University of Western Australia

Michael Wright
Telethon Kids Institute

Until recently, Aboriginal people have been subjected to mainly top-down development, which has proven damaging to communities. Mia Mia Aboriginal Community Development offers an alternative to such approaches, promoting cultural security in order to empower Aboriginal people to strengthen their own communities. The authors take a multidisciplinary approach to the topics of Aboriginal community development, Aboriginal history, cultural security and community studies. This book includes chapters examining historical and contemporary Aboriginal conceptions of community development, and the effects of post-structuralism, post-modernism, globalisation and digital technology. As well as comprehensive analysis of community development in Aboriginal communities, it presents practical strategies and tools for improvement.

Cheryl Kickett-Tucker is Executive Director of Pindi Pindi Ltd, Centre for Research Excellence in Aboriginal Wellbeing, Western Australia, and Professor of Indigenous Research Leadership, Curtin University.

Dawn Bessarab is Professor and Director of the Centre for Aboriginal Medical and Dental Health at the University of Western Australia. Dawn is a senior Indigenous researcher in Aboriginal health.

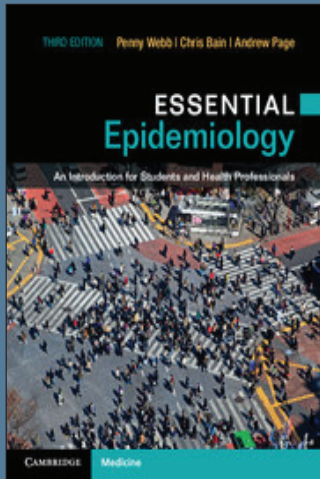

Juli Coffin is Director at the Broome Campus of Notre Dame University, Western Australia.

Michael Wright is an Early Career Research Fellow at Curtin University, and he leads and co-leads both Aboriginal community mental health research and Aboriginal child health research projects in the Perth area.

KEY FEATURES

- Written by leading Aboriginal scholars and elders, as well as community health practitioners
- Provides a multidisciplinary approach to community development that focuses on cultural security, history and the effects of globalisation
- Provides practical tools and strategies for improvement in communities, reinforced by case studies and review exercises

Essential Epidemiology

An Introduction for Students and Health Professionals

Penny Webb

Queensland Institute of Medical Research

Chris Bain

Queensland Institute of Medical Research

Andrew Page

University of Western Sydney

Taking a practical approach and supported by global examples from all areas of health, the new edition of this popular and highly commended textbook has been updated to reflect current epidemiological thinking and teaching. Based on feedback from teachers and students, material has been reordered to better suit courses and reflect the underlying logic and purpose of epidemiology.

Penny Webb is a Principal Research Fellow at the QIMR Berghofer Medical Research Institute and Honorary Professor at the School of Public Health, University of Queensland.

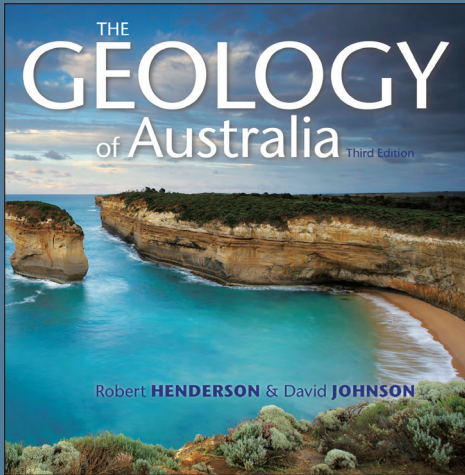

Chris Bain is a Visiting Scientist at the Queensland Institute of Medical Research.

Andrew Page is Professor of Epidemiology at the Centre for Health Research, School of Medicine, University of Western Sydney.

KEY FEATURES

- Demonstrates the commonalities between different areas of epidemiology and emphasizes the key role of epidemiology in public health
- Considers the nature and practical implications of the fundamental biases of selection and measurement, providing a clear conceptual outline, examples, and flow charts to support students as they master this tricky topic
- Avoids complex mathematics, making the book accessible to those from a non-quantitative background
- Online resources include additional questions, suggestions for further reading, links to useful websites and teaching slides

The Geology of Australia

Robert Henderson

James Cook University

David Johnson

James Cook University

This book documents the rich and spectacular heritage of the Australian continent over the last 4400 million years. Now in its third edition, The Geology of Australia provides a comprehensive overview of Australia's geology, landscapes and Earth resources. Beginning with the Precambrian rocks that hold clues to the origins of life and the development of an oxygenated atmosphere, it goes on to cover the warm seas, volcanism and episodes of mountain building that formed the eastern third of the Australian continent. This illuminating history details the breakup of the supercontinents Rodinia and Gondwana, the times of previous glaciations, the development of climates and landscapes in modern Australia, and the creation of the continental shelves and coastlines. This third edition features two new chapters on geological time and Paleozoic orogenic rock systems and mountain building, and new and updated illustrations and full-colour images.

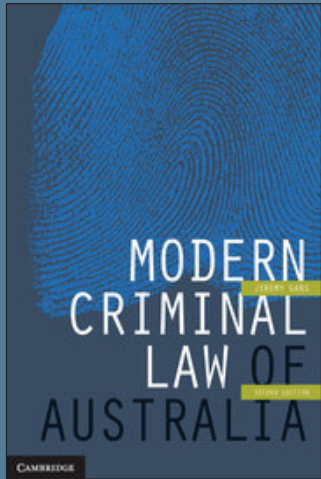

Robert Henderson is an Emeritus Professor at James Cook University, North Queensland. He joined the academic staff of James Cook University in 1969 following a post-doctoral post as a Fulbright Fellow and Frank Knox Memorial Fellow at Harvard University, Massachusetts, and served as President of the Geological Society of Australia from 1998 to 2000.

David Johnson holds an adjunct position as a Senior Principal Research Fellow in the School of Earth and Environmental Sciences, James Cook University, North Queensland.

KEY FEATURES

- The only contemporary book that provides comprehensive coverage of Australian geology in a single volume
- Provides an understanding and perspective of Australia's very rich geological heritage in the rocks and landscapes in which we live
- This revised edition includes new and updated illustrations, and full-colour images

Modern Criminal Law of Australia

Jeremy Gans

University of Melbourne

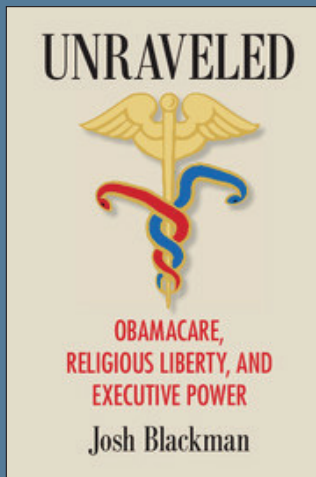

Modern Criminal Law of Australia is a comprehensive guide to interpreting and understanding every statutory offence provision in every Australian jurisdiction. The text takes a unique approach to explaining Australian criminal law, emphasising the importance of statutory interpretation, official discretion, element analysis and sentencing, in order to appreciate the meaning and effect of any offence provision. This book sets out the rules and skills needed to advise clients on the potential application of the criminal law throughout Australia. Its scope extends to both serious and minor regulatory regimes, as well as the entire contemporary breadth of the criminal law, ranging from pollution to public order, traffic to trafficking and domestic violence to work safety. It covers the common law, traditional code and model code systems, and includes detailed examples from all states. As such, this unique book provides students with the skills to practice law anywhere in Australia.

Jeremy Gans is a Professor, teaching and research all aspects of criminal justice at Melbourne Law School, Australia's leading law school on all rankings. He was awarded an Australian Publishing Award (for the first edition of Modern Criminal Law of Australia) in 2012 and a national citation for outstanding contributions to teaching in 2013 (for his teaching of evidence law).

KEY FEATURES

- Students gain a deeper understanding of each legal system in Australia through comparisons and contrasts
- Provides students and modern practitioners with the skills and information to understand and advise clients about any of the thousands of criminal offences across Australia
- The book excerpts hundreds of statutory provisions together with detailed discussion of how to read them

Unraveled

Obamacare, Religious Liberty, and Executive Power

Josh Blackman

South Texas College of Law

Six years after its enactment, Obamacare remains one of the most controversial, divisive, and enduring political issues in America. In this much-anticipated follow-up to his critically acclaimed Unprecedented: The Constitutional Challenge to Obamacare (2013), Professor Blackman argues that, to implement the law, President Obama has broken promises about cancelled insurance policies, exceeded the traditional bounds of executive power, and infringed on religious liberty. At the same time, conservative opponents have stopped at nothing to unravel Obamacare, including a three-week government shutdown, four Supreme Court cases, and fifty repeal votes. This legal thriller provides the definitive account of the battle to stop Obamacare from being 'woven into the fabric of America'. Unraveled is essential reading to understand the future of the Affordable Care Act in America's gridlocked government in 2016, and beyond.

Praise for Unraveled: Obamacare, Religious Liberty, and Executive Power by Josh Blackman

Obamacare has remarkably, if perversely, made American political discourse more interesting. It has stimulated braided debates about the proper scope and actual competence of government, about the role of the judiciary in supervising democratic processes, and about how religious liberty becomes a casualty of 'comprehensive' social legislation enlarging the entitlement state. Josh Blackman, who has been immersed in all this as a scholar and participant, gives readers an invaluable inside tour of an ongoing controversy.

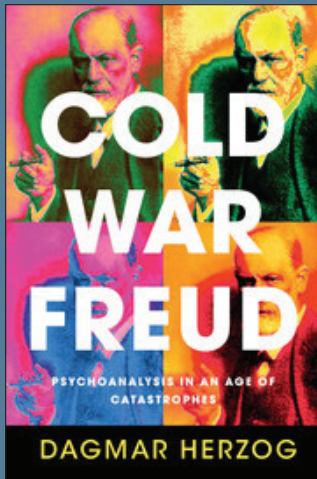

George F. Will, newspaper columnist and political commentator

Josh Blackman is a constitutional law professor at the South Texas College of Law, Houston. He is the author of Unprecedented: The Constitutional Challenge to Obamacare (2013). Professor Blackman regularly provides public commentary on constitutional matters, and his work has appeared in the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, the Washington Post, USA Today, the LA Times, and other national publications.

KEY FEATURES

- Provides detailed analysis of three major Supreme Court decisions, including insights gleaned from personal interviews
- Discusses the Affordable Care Act in a balanced and measured way while providing an authoritative chronology of the implementation of this law
- Studies the delays and modifications of Affordable Care Act mandates implemented by the President

Cold War Freud

Psychoanalysis in an Age of Catastrophes

Dagmar Herzog
City University of New York

In Cold War Freud Dagmar Herzog uncovers the astonishing array of concepts of human selfhood which circulated across the globe in the aftermath of World War II. Against the backdrop of Nazism and the Holocaust, the sexual revolution, feminism, gay rights, and anticolonial and antiwar activism, she charts the heated battles which raged over Freud's legacy. From the postwar US to Europe and Latin America, she reveals how competing theories of desire, anxiety, aggression, guilt, trauma and pleasure emerged and were then transformed to serve both conservative and subversive ends in a fundamental rethinking of the very nature of the human self and its motivations. Her findings shed new light on psychoanalysis' enduring contribution to the enigma of the relationship between nature and culture, and the ways in which social contexts enter into and shape the innermost recesses of individual psyches.

Praise for Cold War Freud by Dagmar Herzog

This is surely a history of the Cold War world as we did not know it, in which psychoanalytic conformists and rebels flex their way through the controversies of the era - Auschwitz, My Lai, student protests, postcolonial insurgencies, the culture of narcissism. Partly about the collapse of psychoanalysis in its bid to be the regulating body for Christian American normalcy, it is even more so the story of psychoanalysis resurgent and radical. Fiercely relevant

Matt Ffytche, author of The Foundation of the Unconscious

Dagmar Herzog is Distinguished Professor of History and Daniel Rose Faculty Scholar at the Graduate Center, City University of New York, and has published extensively on the histories of religion, gender and sexuality, and the history of the Holocaust and its aftermath. She is the author of four previous books, including Sex after Fascism: Memory and Morality in Twentieth-Century Germany (2005), and the editor or co-editor of six anthologies spanning issues of war, sexuality, religion and historical theory.

KEY FEATURES

- An engaging and wide-ranging cultural, political and intellectual history of the evolution of psychoanalysis
- Offers fresh insights into the profound consequences of the Holocaust and the Nazi past on post-war psychoanalysis
- Presents new readings of radical, anarchist and utopian Freudianism in the 1960s and 1970s
