Drug Wars

How Big Pharma Raises Prices and Keeps Generics off the Market

Robin Feldman

University of California Hastings College of Law

Evan Frondorf

University of California Hastings College of Law

While the shockingly high prices of prescription drugs continue to dominate the news, the strategies used by pharmaceutical companies to prevent generic competition are poorly understood, even by the lawmakers responsible for regulating them. In this groundbreaking work, Robin Feldman and Evan Frondorf illuminate the inner workings of the pharmaceutical market and show how drug companies twist health policy to achieve goals contrary to the public interest. In highly engaging prose, they offer specific examples of how generic competition has been stifled for years, with costs climbing into the billions and everyday consumers paying the price. Drug Wars is a guide to the current landscape, a roadmap for reform, and a warning of what is to come. It should be read by policymakers, academics, patients, and anyone else concerned with the soaring costs of prescription drugs.

KEY FEATURES

- Explains important trends in the pharmaceutical industry while remaining reader-friendly
- Covers public pricing scandals involving Martin Shkreli and other characters, providing a 'behind-the-scenes' look at high pharmaceutical prices
- Offers an organized history of generic pharmaceutical delay, with strategies sorted in easy-to-follow categories

Australian Vegetation

Edited by David A. Keith

University of New South Wales

Australian Vegetation has been an essential reference for students and researchers in botany, ecology and natural resource management for over 35 years. Now fully updated and with a new team of authors, the third edition presents the latest insights on the patterns and processes that shaped the vegetation of Australia. The first part of the book provides a synthesis of ecological processes that influence vegetation traits throughout the continent, using a new classification of vegetation. The book's second half presents detailed ecological portraits for each major vegetation type and offers data-rich perspectives and comparative analysis presented in tables, graphs, maps and colour illustrations. This authoritative book will inspire readers to learn and explore first-hand the vegetation of Australia.

KEY FEATURES

- The most up-to-date synthesis of knowledge on Australian vegetation for over twenty years – no other book covers the breadth and depth of the subject matter
- A new and expanded team of high-calibre authors
- Features a range of new and updated chapters, with data-rich perspectives and comparative analysis presented in graphs, tables, maps and colour photographs

Destroy and Build

Pacification in Phuoc Tuy, 1966–1972

Thomas Richardson
University of New South Wales

In 2002, Governor General Michael Jeffrey stated that 'we Australians had everything under control in Phuoc Tuy Province'. This referred not only to military control, but to the policy of 'pacification' employed by the Republic of Vietnam and external 'Free World' allies such as the US and Australia. In the hopes of stemming the tide of Communism, pacification aimed to win the allegiance of the populace through political, economic and social reform. In this new work, Thomas Richardson explores the 1st Australian Task Force's (1ATF) implementation of this policy in Phuoc Tuy between 1966 and 1972. Using material from US and Australian archives, as well as newly translated Vietnamese histories, Destroy and Build: Pacification in Phuoc Tuy, 1966–1972 challenges the accepted historiography of the Western forces' fight against insurgency in Vietnam.

KEY FEATURES

- Challenges the accepted historiography of the fight against insurgency in Vietnam
- Discusses the policy of pacification on its own merits, rather than by its impact on Western forces
- Introduces readers to a commonly overlooked aspect of the war in Vietnam

In Their Time of Need

Australia's Overseas Emergency Relief Operations 1918–2010

Steven Bullard
Australian War Memorial

This volume of the Official History of Australian Peacekeeping, Humanitarian and Post-Cold War Operations recounts the activities of Australia's military forces in response to overseas natural disasters. The military's involvement in overseas emergency management has focused primarily on the period immediately after disaster strikes: transporting relief supplies, providing medical assistance, restoring basic services and communications and other logistical support. Beginning with the 1917-18 influenza epidemic that ravaged the Pacific and culminating with the 2005 Pakistan earthquake, this book covers Australia's response to some of the most catastrophic natural events of the twentieth century. In Their Time of Need is richly detailed, as Steven Bullard weaves together official government records and archival images with the personal narratives and photographs of those who served. This volume is an authoritative and compelling history of Australia's efforts to help their neighbours.

KEY FEATURES

- This text is the official history of the activities of Australia's military in response to overseas natural disasters
- Official government records, archival images and personal narratives and photographs are expertly woven together to give the reader a comprehensive understanding of the topic
- This volume explores an aspect of Australian history that is little understood and rarely analysed in depth

Guarding the Periphery

The Australian Army in Papua New Guinea, 1951–75

Tristan Moss

University of New South Wales

Based around the Pacific Islands Regiment, the Australian Army's units in Papua New Guinea had a dual identity: integral to Australia's defence, but also part of its largest colony, and viewed as a foreign people. The Australian Army in PNG defended Australia from threats to its north and west, while also managing the force's place within Australian colonial rule in PNG, occasionally resulting in a tense relationship with the Australian colonial government during a period of significant change. In Guarding the Periphery: The Australian Army in Papua New Guinea, 1951–75, Tristan Moss explores the operational, social and racial aspects of this unique force during the height of the colonial era in PNG and during the progression to independence. Combining the rich detail of both archival material and oral histories, Guarding the Periphery recounts a part of Australian military history that is often overlooked by studies of Australia's military past.

KEY FEATURES

- Richly detailed, drawing on archival material and oral histories
- Explores an area of Australia's military and colonial history that is often overlooked
- Introduces readers to the social, cultural and linguistic diversity of the Australian Army

War beyond Words

Languages of Memory from the Great War to the Present

Jay Winter

Yale University

What we know of war is always mediated knowledge and feeling. We need lenses to filter out some of its blinding, terrifying light. These lenses are not fixed; they change over time, and Jay Winter's panoramic history of war and memory offers an unprecedented study of transformations in our imaginings of war, from 1914 to the present. He reveals the ways in which different creative arts have framed our meditations on war, from painting and sculpture to photography, film and poetry, and ultimately to silence, as a language of memory in its own right. He shows how these highly mediated images of war, in turn, circulate through language to constitute our 'cultural memory' of war. This is a major contribution to our understanding of the diverse ways in which men and women have wrestled with the intractable task of conveying what twentieth-century wars meant to them and mean to us.

KEY FEATURES

- Proposes a unique view of the cultural consequences of war, avoiding the 'pacifist or patriot' approach to cultural history
- Provides a multi-disciplinary approach to landscapes of memory, emphasizing the significance of the visual frameworks in which war remembrance takes place
- Goes beyond the 'modernist-traditionalist' divide in interpretations of the cultural consequences of war in twentieth-century Europe
- Shows that as war mutates, so do the languages in which practices of commemoration are framed
